Cookies, signals and similar technologies

Cookies

For the purpose of this Privacy policy, we use the term “cookies” to define cookies and other similar technologies, such as Pixel Tags, Web Beacon, Clear GIF.

Cookie usage

When you visit the Data Controller’s websites, we want to provide you with the content and features that are customised to your needs. This requires cookies. These are small items of information stored in your web browser. They help the Data Controller recognise you as the previous visitor to a certain website, save the history of your visit to the website and adapt the content accordingly. Cookies also help to ensure smooth running of the websites, allow you to monitor the duration, frequency of visits to websites, and collect statistical information about the number of website visitors. By analysing this data, we can improve our websites and make them more user-friendly. Some examples of cookie usage:

- Cookies allow us to identify how many unique users are on the website at once, thus helping to ensure smooth and fast functioning;
- Cookies allow us to analyse the collected information about the browsing of unique users which helps to customise the functioning of the website to your needs.

The cookies used on our websites fall into the following types:

- Required cookies are strictly necessary so that our website can perform its core functions. These cookies allow you to browse the website and use the features you want, such as providing access to secure website areas. Without these cookies, we cannot provide services that allow this website to function.
- Activity cookies collect anonymous information about how visitors use the website. By providing information about visited areas, time spent on the website and any problems encountered, such as error messages, these cookies help us understand how visitors behave on the website. This information helps us improve website performance.

Cookies help to collect the following data:

- We can use IP addresses of the visitors computers when administrating websites and diagnosing server faults. IP address is a unique network code identifying a computer. It can be used to identify a visitor and collect various demographic information. This is done by the absolute majority of web server administrators.

We collect data on the use of services by using cookies. The types of cookies used on our websites are listed above.

How to manage and delete cookies

When you use the browser to access the content we provide, you can configure your browser to accept all cookies, reject all cookies or notify when the cookie is downloaded. Each browser is different, thus, if you do not know how to change cookie preferences, please look in it’s help menu. Your device operating system may have additional cookie controls. If you do not want the information to be collected using cookies, use the current easy-to-use procedure applied in most browsers that allows you to stop using cookies. To learn more about cookie control, click on: <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/manage-cookies/>.

However, please keep in mind that some services may be designed to work with cookies only, and you will no longer be able to use them or certain parts of them if you turn them off.

Other information related to the use of cookies

In addition to the cookies used by the Data Controller, our websites allow certain third parties to set up and access cookies on your computer. In this case, third-party Privacy policy applies to the use of cookies.

*Please note that social accounts managed by the Data Controller are subject to the specific accounts cookie policy.
